The 3rd (Third) Conditional

The 3rd conditional sentence structure is also called the past unreal conditional or past hypothetical conditional. It is used to imagine a different past than the one that happened.

If I hadn't eaten so much, I wouldn't have gotten<sup>a</sup> so fat.

The IF clause is unreal. It did not happen. The result is what would have happened IF the IF clause were real:
If I hadn't eaten so much,

Did I eat a lot? Yes, I did. However, I'm imagining what would have happened if I hadn't eaten so much.
What would have happened if I hadn't eaten so much? The result:
...I wouldn't have gotten<sup>a</sup> so fat.

Am I fat now? Yes, I would not be fat now if I hadn't eaten so much in the past.
If I ate well in the past, I would not be fat now.

<sup>a</sup>In American English, 'gotten' is used at the past participle of 'got.' In British English, 'gotten' is not used.

[I'm not fat in real life! I am just using this as an example sentence!]

The 3rd conditional form:
IF + past perfect, would have + past participle

NOTES:
*the past perfect tense = had + past participle

*In spoken English, subject + would AND subject + had are usually contracted:
I'd, you'd, she'd, he'd, we'd, they'd

Because you are imagining the past, you can ONLY use IF. In this sentence structure, you cannot use when, after, or any other time conjunction
